1. Along the former Italo-Yugoslav frontier from Postojna to Sv. Petar and thence to the Eneo at Sv. Katarina near Rijeka, which is now Yugoslav territory, old Italian fortifications have been demolished. The iron has been taken for scrap or sold by the peasants and the whole area is now unfortified.
2. New fortifications have been built farther to the east, facing the Austrian and Hungarian borders. The fortifications opposite Austria are light, while those opposite Hungary are much more extensive.
